Escaped man captured in Florida

COLUMBUS -- A man who escaped from a southeastern Ohio psychiatric hospital has been captured in Florida, the State Highway Patrol said.

FBI agents arrested Donald D. Castle around 10:30 a.m. Wednesday at a Daytona Beach, Fla., hotel. He was being held at a local jail pending extradition proceedings.

Castle, 46, escaped March 10 from the Southeastern Psychiatric Hospital in Athens. The patrol posted his photograph on the Internet, the worldwide network of computers.

The posting led to a number of tips, including one from an Ashland, Ky., hotel manager who had seen Castle's photo on television.

Tinted windows lead to drugs

MERCER, Pa. -- Maybe tinted windows are the key. Early this month, state police found 495 pounds of marijuana when they stopped a man driving a van with tinted windows on Interstate 80 near the Ohio state line.

On Wednesday, they found $123,000 and a small amount of marijuana on a passenger in a 1990 Nissan Maxima on the same highway.

Trooper Christopher Hugar said he stopped the car because the drivers' and passengers' side doors had tinted windows, which is a violation of state law. The driver, Miguel Rebollo of Newport News, Va., said Hugar could search the car, so the trooper got a drug-sniffing dog to help.

The dog indicated there were drugs in the back seat, so Hugar checked more closely. He didn't discover any drugs, but he did find the door to the compartment behind a folding armrest.

Menendez brothers found guilty of parents' murders

Linda Deutsch
The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES -- A jury convicted Lyle and Erik Menendez of first-degree murder today for ambushing their parents in their mansion 6 1/2 years ago, rejecting the claim that the brothers killed to end years of abuse.

They could be sentenced to death because the jury decided that the brothers were guilty of special circumstances of lying in wait and multiple murders.

The judge ordered a penalty phase trial to begin Monday. The same jury will decide whether the Menendezes should be sentenced to lethal injection or life without parole.

The brothers, whose previous trials ended with hung juries, were deathly pale as the verdicts were read by the court clerk. But neither Erik, 25, nor Lyle, 28, who also were convicted of conspiracy, showed any emotion.

Their grandmother and other family members seated in the audience remained calm.

'Roofies' may endanger students on break

Jennifer Schab
The BG News

Students going down to Florida for spring break should be on the look-out for "roofies," the "date rape drug of choice," according to the chairwoman of the University Coalition Against Sexual Offenses.

Barb Hoffman, CASO chairwoman, said students on spring break need to be aware of the dangers of roofies. The drug is especially popular in Florida where it is slipped into drinks and used to weaken victims, especially women, to a state in which they can be taken advantage of, she said.

On spring break people will be drinking in large crowds or bars where roofies can be slipped into their drinks, Hoffman said.

"Our major concern is people getting taken advantage of or violated and not even knowing where they are," Hoffman said.

"If people are under the influence of this drug there is a greater risk of sexual assault, and with sexual assault there can be pregnancy or STDs."

"People need to be aware of the potential danger," Hoffman said.

"Students need to consider the high risk and know that it could happen anywhere and not just with alcohol, it could be slipped into lemonade or Coke as well."

Nikole Koebel, publicity sub-committee chairperson of CASO said students need to exercise common sense.

"Students should be aware of who gives you a drink. Buy your own alcohol, don't set your drink aside unattended and be aware of your environment at all times," Koebel said.

"Also have a support system near at all times."

"Make sure you have friends around who will take care of you and watch out for you," Koebel said.

"The drug works with similar affects to alcohol, but it is much stronger," Koebel said. "It knocks a person out physically or makes them blackout so they either don't know what they are doing, or they do things that they wouldn't normally do and let things happen that they would not normally let happen."

"Spring break is a time to go and relax and have fun, but it is also a time when a lot of date rape happens," Koebel said.

"Students need to be aware of the potential dangers."

Hoffman said if a situation does occur, seek medical attention immediately. Contact police and get assistance to direct you in the right direction, Hoffman said. "If you do not get help right away, and you come back to school and wish to do something about it, go to the Health Center, the Link or the Wellness Center," Hoffman said.

"If sexual assault happens, no matter what, even if you were drinking or doing something illegal, it is not your fault. Please seek help right away whether it be emotional, physical or psychological," Koebel said.

"Roofies" is the street name for the drug Rohypnol. It is also called "ruffies," "roche," "R-2,"

Texan cleared of shooting motorist

Jay Jorden
The Associated Press

DALLAS -- A grand jury Wednesday cleared the first Texan to use his legally concealed handgun in a fatal shooting, declining to indict him in the death of a fellow motorist during a scuffle over a minor traffic accident.

Gordon Reid Hale III, 42, of Grand Prairie, faced murder charges after fatally shooting delivery driver Kenny Taval, 33, in the chest with a .40 caliber handgun.

The two men got into an argument after Taval's side mirror grazed Hale's pickup on a Dallas expressway Feb. 21. Witnesses said Hale fired after Taval left his car and punched Hale. Taval died shortly thereafter.

"The grand jury heard the evidence, deliberated and made its decision," said Dallas County prosecutor Elizabeth Tamez.

It was the first time since Texans were allowed to legally carry concealed handguns that a permit holder had been charged with murder for using the weapon. The law went on the books Jan. 1.

Hale, who had been free on $25,000 bond since his arrest, told KDFW-TV after the decision that he felt shooting Taval was his only choice.

He said Taval had reached into the truck with both hands, grabbed him by the collar and pinned his left arm against the window before striking him.

"He hit me right in the side of the head, the first shot, and then he just started whacking on me," he said.

"It got to the point where he was going to kill me or beat my brains out," Hale said. "I felt I had no other choice but to defend myself and I reached over and grabbed my pistol and fired one shot."

State Sen. Jerry Patterson, the lead sponsor, praised the grand jury's decision and criticized opponents of the law, saying they ignored the fact that people are entitled to use justifiable force to defend themselves.

"These gun-control nuts gleefully reveled in the death of Mr. Kenny Taval, blaming this incident on the concealed handgun bill without examining any facts of the case," Patterson said.

State questions Journalism Department's hiring practices

Jay Young
The BG News

The Ohio Civil Rights Commission and former Bowling Green mayoral candidate John Hartman will appear in a hearing today in the University Union, claiming the Journalism Department has participated in illegal hiring practices.

Hartman applied for a tenure-track position in the department in April 1994. About three months later he was notified that Debbie Owens had been selected for the position by then-department chairman Ray Laakaniemi.

After learning that Owens is a black female, Hartman filed a discrimination complaint with the Ohio Civil Rights Commission on July 25, 1994. In May 1995 Hartman was notified by Mark Kautzmann, OCRC Special Enforcement Unit manager, that the agency had determined "that it is probable that Bowling Green State University has engaged in unlawful discrimination practices."

As a result of the decision, a hearing was set for January. At the request of the University, the hearing was delayed until today.

Hartman said the selection process is the basis of his complaint.

"I believe that there were irregularities in the faculty recruitment and hiring process," Hartman said. "Those irregularities were caused by illegal discrimination on the basis of race and sex."

Laakaniemi, who is currently teaching in Estonia, was unavailable for comment.

Nancy Brendlinger, Journalism Department chairwoman, said Hartman was not a very good candidate for the position.

"If you look at the two vitae, Debbie Owens's vitae is much better than Jack Hartman's in relationship to the position we advertised," Brendlinger said. "Jack Hartman wasn't even considered. If Debbie Owens had not accepted this job, he was not the next person we would have interviewed."

Hartman, who works as a journalism professor at Central Michigan, said the department's accreditation played a major role in the decision to hire Owens.

The Journalism Department is currently accredited by the Accrediting Council on Education in Journalism and Mass Communications, an independent organization based at the University of Kansas.

In its last accreditation report, completed during the fall 1991 academic semester, the ACEJMC found the Journalism Department to be non-compliant with accreditation standards in several areas, including a shortage of minority and female faculty.

At the time of the ACEJMC report, the department was placed on probationary accreditation and official requirements for re-accreditation were established.

Letters to the Editor

Prout residents voice concerns

As female residents of Prout Hall, we are writing to The BG News to speak out about the lack of security not only in our residence hall, but others as well. We wish to bring this serious problem to the attention of those with the authority and power to do something about it.

Prout is probably one of the best, if not the best, dorms on this campus. The atmosphere is friendly and warm, with a great staff of RAs. We feel lucky to live here and experience the "Living and Learning" program. There is a problem though, and a serious one at that. It is a campus-wide issue that affects everyone in one way or another. That issue is safety.

As females, we have a natural concern for our safety at night walking across campus or home from a night out. We all have an automatic anxiety if we feel that we are in a situation where we could possibly be attacked, raped or harmed in some way. But one place where we want and expect to feel safe is in our rooms where we sleep, study and relax. We also expect, along with that, for the staff of our residence hall to work with and hire people that will help to protect us and keep Prout safe.

Unfortunately, this doesn't seem to be the case all of the time.

There have been too many instances of male friends being let in without showing any identification whatsoever, just being waved on and told "You're OK."

There have been too many times when the nightguards have not been paying attention to who walks in the doors, or just plain sleeping when anyone - any rapist or thief - could walk in.

Too many friends and neighbors have been raped in their rooms in dorms across campus.

We know of people who have gotten lock-out keys to rooms which were not theirs.

We know of others who have checked into a dorm with a fake ID number and fake name.

We are tired of being frightened and demand that something be done. We demand our safety and piece of mind. We demand that some kind of action be taken to make our residence halls safer for everyone.

Too often we hear that something needs to be done, but nothing that we can see is changing. It's about time something does change. How many more rapes or thefts will it take for this campus to wake up and realize what's going on?

Big Brother is reading your e-mail

Writer's Note: This past summer I wrote a column which discussed, among other related topics, the possible dangers of wide-spread and rampant e-mail usage. A gentleman who referred to himself as an "English Fellow" wrote me a letter in response to the column, basically saying that the situation I described couldn't happen. Wherever you are Mr. "English Fellow," I hope you're reading this column, which is a true story.

Being one who's always trying to find a way to make my life a little bit easier, I finally took the technological plunge last semester by getting an e-mail account.

Since that fateful semester I've been making weekly visits to the campus' various computer labs, checking my e-mailbox and sending people e-messages.

As a matter of fact, I was in the computer lab not long ago doing just that when I received a message from a friend of mine that simply read:

union
wednesday
9:30 am important please show-up
Uh, yeah. Without further ado,

I made the necessary schedule rearrangements and hooked up with my friend at 9:45 AM on the dot.

"What's up man?" I said as I comfortably slid into a the seat across from him.

Over the next fifteen minutes "John" told me the following tale: A few weeks earlier John had met a girl at one of the local meat markets, er, I mean bars. Throughout the night they talked and laughed, and they really hit it off and blah blah blah.

Well anyways, being this is the nineties they exchanged both phone numbers AND e-mail addresses.

[Insert "Awwwww..." here] Well as it ends up John decided that he and "Darla" weren't really meant to be a couple after all, and after a few short days together John let Darla know that it'd probably be best if they didn't "see" each other anymore.

Unknown to John, however, Darla had really fallen for him in the short time they had known each other. As a result, Darla was pretty upset with John's decision.

Interestingly enough, there was something else that John didn't know about Darla: She's a computer whiz.

In fact, Darla's such a computer whiz that she learned how to break into John's e-mail account and read all his messages.

This obviously made John distraught.

He tried to change his e-mail address as well as his password, but nothing did any good. Darla kept getting into his account.

"How am I supposed to receive any e-mail from anybody without her reading it?" He asked as I coolly buttered my bagel.

"How about using regular mail?" I suggested.

"I'm serious," John replied.

"Well if you weren't such a pimp with women..."

"AARON!!!"

"OK, OK..." I said, as we tried to figure out a solution to his problem.

With the exception of e-mail abstinence, we couldn't really come up with one.

Since "breaking-up" with Darla, John has received a number of "hints" from Darla concerning messages he has received from other women he knows. Since John hasn't been able to prove that the "hints" are coming from Darla, however, he's pretty much stuck.

The point of this article wasn't to show you why you shouldn't have sex with someone you hardly know, nor was its aim to slam the completely lame BG bar scene. The point was to alert people to just one of the many dangers of that cute little software program we so affectionately call "e-mail."

Granted, e-mail has a lot of advantages over the current postal system most of us use, but as this incident (among others) shows, its disadvantages are crippling.

And here's one more little factor to think about: If some college student from Bowling Green, Ohio can do this, doesn't it make you wonder who else can?

Aaron Weisbrod is the Thursday columnist guy for The News. He doesn't have any psychotic ex-girlfriends who can break into his e-mail account, so feel free to drop him a line at aaronw@bgsu.edu. If you loathe e-mail, drop him a line at 210 West Hall. Either way's legit with him. By the way, have a safe Spring Break.

Judge says dialing dog for the birds

I'm not in the habit of watching the evening TV tabloid shows, but I have to admit that when I saw the ad for one of those shows that featured a dog who saved a woman's life by calling 911, I had to stay tuned. The story turned out to be a bit less remarkable than they had led us to believe it would be though.

The woman who was saved has a breathing disorder and she has to sleep with an oxygen mask over her face. If something goes wrong or the machine fails for some reason, an alarm sounds. On the night in question, her oxygen mask came off. The woman's dog is trained to react to the alarm by knocking the phone off the hook and pressing any button. The line automatically connects to 911, where the operators were on alert that the heavy breathing on the other end wasn't an obscene call.

Not quite as amazing as if the dog would have actually made up her mind that there was an emergency situation, picked up the phone, dialed 911 and then directed the squad to the right house. But it was impressive nonetheless.

Whether or not the dog is as smart as Lassie isn't really the point, though. This story illustrates a typical technique employed by the media, especially by these types of shows, to reel us in with sensational "teases" that are meant to keep us from switching channels during commercial breaks. It has become quite common for media to draw us in by playing 911 tapes on the air. And a dog making a 911 call is, I should think, like nirvana for one of those program directors.

We all remember the now famous calls that Nicole Brown Simpson made to 911 during her domestic disputes with O.J. Simpson. Those things got more air time than Michael Jordan does going in for a slam dunk. But should such calls be splashed all over TV and the newspapers?

Recently, the Supreme Court of Ohio issued a decision on several cases that determined if 911 tapes should be considered public records, available for anyone to listen to, and to broadcast. The suits were filed by two Cincinnati newspapers that sought copies of tapes that were calls to murder scenes. The requests were refused by both the city of Cincinnati and the Hamilton County Prosecuting Attorney.

We ruled that the tapes of phone calls made to 911 are a matter of public record according to the description of the law. Therefore, the tapes have to be released to the media, or anyone else, upon request.

I agree with the decision of the majority; the law was pretty clear on the issue. But I did so reluctantly, because I cannot agree with the law.

In the past, I have written about how difficult it is for the law to keep pace with technology. Law makers simply cannot craft legislation that will foresee all the potential pitfalls that inventions, as yet undreamed of, might present.

Our public records laws were passed so that citizens could scrutinize their government. That's a healthy and necessary component of democracy. But when those laws were passed, 911 tape recordings were not anticipated. This is another example of the challenge that technology has presented to the law. It's also the type of situation nobody has thought all the way through yet.

Television news and TV tabloid shows have a heyday with 911 calls. But do we really need to hear the quavering voice of a 4-year-old begging the 911 operator to make daddy stop hitting mommy on the six o'clock news? It may make for scintillating TV, but what public good does it serve?

Does it make us want to watch the show? Obviously it does. But what about the human beings who are caught in the worst tragedy, the most desperate moments of their lives? When they place that call, should they have to consider the possibility that tomorrow their private terror will be played verbatim on the public airwaves, giving them the Warholian fifteen minutes of fame they never asked for?

Playing the recording of the last moments of a dying victim is totally sensational and extremely dramatic, but what about the suffering of the family and friends? Wouldn't the public's need to know be just as satisfied, even if our morbid curiosity wouldn't be, with a summary of the call? Do we really need to experience the anguish first hand?

The Court's decision on these cases was made because the law, as it exists, clearly makes 911 calls public records. That's too bad. While the tape recordings of the frantic screams of a panic-stricken woman facing an armed intruder may be someone's idea of "good television," the broadcast of those screams is not the product of good law.

It's time the General Assembly revisited this area of the law to keep pace with technology and good taste.

Technology discussed in open forum

Jay Young
The BG News

About 50 members of the University community participated in an open forum Wednesday in Olscamp Hall to determine the role technology will play in the University's future.

Students and employees shared their feelings about the preliminary report issued by the Campus Technology Plan Steering Committee last week.

Amy Wendzicki, freshman broadcast journalism major, addressed the committee about its recommendation that students purchase a computer. She said there needs to be good reasoning to encourage such an investment.

"I just thought that you have to give people an incentive to buy something," Wendzicki said. "I thought that educationally for their plan, maybe it would be beneficial for everyone to take a required computer course."

Wendzicki, who owns her own computer, said the purchase is a good investment.

"If you have the money to put into a computer than I say do it, because you'll benefit," Wendzicki said. "It means you don't have to stand in line at the computer lab."

Louis Katzner, committee chairman and Graduate College dean, said it is in the best interest of students to purchase a computer when they enter college.

"In order to be able to do their class work, communicate with other students and access their records, they really need a computer," Katzner said. "You have to believe that for most Bowling Green graduates, whatever they do after they graduate will involve a computer in some way. The more they utilize one while they're here, the better off they'll be when they graduate."

Katzner said if students are required to buy computers a large amount of responsibility must be taken by the University.

"The one argument you can't use is, 'Come to Bowling Green as a freshmen and buy a computer, then you'll have it when you graduate and you'll be able to use it,'" Katzner said. "Unfortunately, given the rate of change and product development in this area, when somebody buys a computer, four to five years later they can do very little with it."

The audience also addressed the issue of leasing or purchasing computers. After the forum, Katzner said it is an issue that will have to be explored before a final decision is made.

"I don't think you can discuss this in a vacuum," Katzner said. "You need to approach vendors and say, 'If we enter into a lease agreement, what can you do for us?' And approach vendors and say, 'If we enter into a purchase agreement, what can you do for us?'"

Some voiced concern that the report draft is too broad. Committee member Linda Dobb, library dean, said the committee intentionally covers a wide area.

"We were trying to cover all different aspects of computing, and there are so many different aspects to computing now because it touches everything that we do at the University," Dobb said.

Dobb said the committee was trying to set a base for the future.

"We were aiming at infrastructure, meaning more and better uses of technology," Dobb said. "Infrastructure, meaning the building blocks toward more and better uses of technology on campus. You have to have the building blocks before you can go into all sorts of different directions."

Katzner said the committee will meet Friday, after today's open forum at 12 p.m. in 113 Olscamp Hall.

"rib" and "rope."

According to the Emergency News Service, Rohypnol is a brand name for flunitrazepam (a benzodiazepine), a very potent tranquilizer similar in nature to valium (diazepam) but many times stronger. The drug produces a sedative effect, amnesia, muscle relaxation and a slowing of psychomotor responses. Sedation occurs 20-30 minutes after administration and lasts several hours.

Rohypnol is inexpensive and, because of its packaging, looks legitimate. It is becoming increasingly popular on college campuses and in high schools where it is slipped into marijuana, alcohol or even punch. It is often given to women to lower inhibitions and heighten the potential for sexual conquest, according to the News Service.

Victims have reported waking up in unfamiliar surroundings with unfamiliar people without clothes, or having been sexually assaulted while under the influence of the drug.

Besides the worries of unprotected sex, Rohypnol, particularly mixed with alcohol or other drugs may lead to respiratory depression, aspiration and even death.

Hoffman said she has not yet heard of any cases of Rohypnol on campus.

Kids able to learn about internet

Jack Buehrer
The BG News

A group of 20 elementary students from Bowling Green city schools are learning how to use the internet in an 11-week course called "Kids and the Internet" at the University.

Guy Zimmerman, University associate professor of computer science is the instructor of the course. He said he feels the computer course is very important to the kids.

"We explore the World Wide Web and teach them the basics of e-mail," Zimmerman said. "We give them e-mail accounts and let them e-mail the President as well as each other, and they really seem to enjoy that."

"Eventually we're going to have them start their own web pages. I hope they will gain a better understanding of what is out there through the internet." "Kids and the Internet" is one of four courses offered to students in the fourth through sixth grades in the Bowling Green city school's OPTions program.

Secretary of the enrichment program, Valerie Busch, said that the program is very selective.

"We give the students tests in aptitude, creativity and achievement," she said. "We also take teacher recommendations into consideration. Any student who qualifies in two of the four criteria is eligible for the OPT program."

Busch added that the OPT program offers students a series of courses that are more academically challenging than what they are receiving in their classes at school.

"These courses go a little more in-depth and expose them to different subject matter," she said. "It also gives them an alternative to watching television."

Spring snow storm frustrates travelers

Mitch Weiss
The Associated Press

A storm that dropped up to 6 inches of snow on parts of Ohio on Wednesday -- the first day of spring -- cut power, snarled traffic and canceled classes for some schoolchildren.

A driver was killed when his truck was struck by a vehicle that went out of control on icy roads in west-central Ohio.

Richard Chandler, 55, of Urbana, died when his truck was hit by a vehicle driven by Jason Wibel, of St. Paris, the Champaign County Sheriff's Department said. Wibel had tried to slow down because of ice on the road but lost control.

More than 4 inches of snow fell on Toledo since Tuesday night. Four to 6 inches -- accompanied by wind gusts up to 30 mph -- covered northeast Ohio. The Columbus area in central Ohio got about 2 inches.

"This is ridiculous," said Terry Mulligan, who was shoveling snow outside his home on the east side of Toledo. "Doesn't Mother Nature know what day it is?"

The snowfall gave some students a day off from school but also snarled traffic and left about 48,000 Toledo Edison customers without power.

"Two days ago, I was putting mulch down in my back yard," said Mike Greer, 44, who lives on Toledo's west side. "I was getting ready to plant a vegetable garden. This has been one really long winter."

And snow wasn't the only problem. The Mahoning River had flooded some low-lying areas in Trumbull County in northeast Ohio, the sheriff's department said. The Scioto River in central Ohio had crested at the 11-foot flood stage.

Light snow continued across Ohio on Wednesday and snow showers were forecast for Thursday before the snowfall ends on Friday. Highs were expected to remain in the 30s until Friday, with temperatures to rebound into the 50s.

"This was a spring surprise," spokesman Chad Ruppel, a spokesman for Midwest Weather in Toledo, which provides information to the National Weather Service.

Toledo Edison spokesman Jim Sielicki said power had been restored to all but 21,000 homes. But he said some customers may be without power until Friday.

The problem: wet, heavy snow and high winds snapped power lines like twigs.

In the Cincinnati area, the schools were closed and morning rush hour was complicated by numerous minor accidents.

The problem was repeated in the Dayton area, which received 4 inches of snow.

Among the requirements was a call for a more balanced percentage of minority and female faculty. The board suggested a faculty composition of 50 percent female and 20 percent minority.

The department conducted a self-analysis in January 1992, in which the department said it had given top priority to hiring of minorities and women.

"The department is specifically committed to a percentage increase of minority and female faculty from the present 25 percent to 36 percent between the present and the 1994-1995 academic year," the department's report states.

Hartman said the accrediting agency cannot legally dictate the makeup of the department.

"That is what we call a quota, and quotas have been found to be illegal, unless they are ordered by a government agency, or the courts," Hartman said. "It has no right to mandate quotas to a Journalism Department."

Brendlinger said the accreditation requirements do play a role in the hiring process.

"Of course it plays a role, but even if it didn't, we would still want to have a diverse faculty,"

Brendlinger said.

She said the department is committed to having a diverse faculty and that is a factor when hiring.

"If I had two people equally qualified for a job, and we were going to be hiring someone," Brendlinger said. "One [candidate] was a guy and one was a woman and we were low on men, I'd probably go for the man."

Brendlinger said if any qualified candidate would have applied for the position Owens received, they would have been considered.

"If we would have had a candidate who was as good as the one who we hired show up in the pool, and that person was either white or male or both, we probably would have pursued that candidate," Brendlinger said. "Because quality is our first consideration."

University Attorney Nancy Footer said the University has not been considering settling out of court.

"We are not contemplating settlement at this time," Footer said.

Hartman said he is open to an out-of-court settlement.

"I would have liked to settle the matter a long time ago."

Mother drops custody lawsuit

Lutheran Social Services will proceed with adoption of baby

The Associated Press

CINCINNATI -- A woman has dropped her lawsuit seeking custody of the infant girl she placed for adoption in November.

Lutheran Social Services said Tuesday it will proceed with the baby's adoption, now that Doreen Wilkinson of Middletown has dropped the suit she filed in January in Hamilton County Common Pleas Court.

The suit had been scheduled for trial next Tuesday.

"It's unfortunate things took this long," said Dave Lamb, spokesman for the agency. "We can finally move ahead with finalizing the baby's adoption."

Wilkinson gave birth to Simone Isabella on Oct. 20 and signed custody of the baby over to Lutheran Social Services on Nov. 6. A few days later, she asked that the baby be returned to her.

She said pressure from adoption workers and a lack of money prompted her to give up the baby. Wilkinson said she changed her mind in hopes that she could stabilize her financial situation.

The agency said it had located the baby's father and obtained his written permission for the adoption. The father was not identified in court records.

Jury sinks boat funds, bond sale postponed

INDIANAPOLIS -- A grand jury investigation into a planned southern Indiana casino has forced the postponement of a $235 million bond sale to help fund the riverboat project.

The surprise news came Wednesday from Thomas Long, president of Argosy Gaming Co., which has a majority interest in the casino approved for Lawrenceburg, an Ohio River city near Cincinnati.

Long told the Indiana Gaming Commission that the bond offering had to be postponed because of investor concerns over news of the investigation and grand jury subpoenas.

He said Argosy and all partners in the project, which includes Conesco Inc., a giant insurance holding company based in suburban Indianapolis, have been ordered to turn over documents to the grand jury.

"Basically what happened is the entire thing is unwound and rescinded," Long said of the bond offering approved by the commission just last week.

Argosy's announcement followed a state House Ethics Committee hearing into more than $40,000 in payments made to state Rep. Sam Turpin from a key contractor on the Lawrenceburg project, American Consulting Engineers Inc.

Turpin, a Brownsburg Republican and chairman of the powerful House Ways and Means Committee, is under scrutiny for failing to properly report the retainer payments.

Since 1993, he has received $1,500 a month from ACE to market the company's architectural and engineering services to local governments.

At about the same time Turpin was hired by ACE, the engineering company was retained by Conesco to work on the Lawrenceburg project. Last year, Turpin also was hired by Conesco.

No criminal charges have been filed, and Turpin has said he expects to be cleared.

The thrust of the Marion County grand jury probe is not known because law requires those proceedings be confidential.

However, Argosy said subpoenas issued Friday request a broad range of documents, including those related to employment, gifts, payments and correspondence between the company and its partners.

In a letter to the Gaming Commission, Long said the company believes Turpin may be the target of the investigation.

Turpin could not be reached for comment, but issued a brief statement saying: "As a citizen legislator I am attempting to get non-legislative work done. I am fully cooperating with the House inquiry and any other legitimate inquiries."

"It is my position not to comment until those conclude."

courtroom with his face flushed and a broad smile, declaring, "I feel great."

The case went to the jury March 1, but negotiations had to restart Thursday when illness forced the judge to replace two panelists with alternates.

The jury's job was complicated by an array of possible guilty verdicts, from first-degree murder down to manslaughter.

The Menendez murder case, a tale of wealth, power and incest in the rarefied realm of Beverly Hills, struck a chord that resonated throughout the country. It placed two young scions to an entertainment industry fortune on trial for the murder of their parents and raised a troubling question as old as time: Could the murder of parents ever be justified?

Lyle and Erik at first denied any role in the killings of Jose and Mary Louise "Kitty" Menendez. They said they had been at the movies. They said the Mafia must have done it. For six months they went on with their lives, spending their inheritance. Then, in March 1990, they were arrested.

It would be three years before their shocking defense was unveiled. They confessed to shooting their parents but said they acted in self-defense believing their parents were about to kill them.

The brothers said they had been sexually and psychologically abused since they were tots, and they finally believed their parents would kill them rather than risk disclosure of incest.

Their lawyers tried to invoke an infrequently used theory known as "imperfect self-defense," which held that a killing by one who believes they are in imminent danger can be justifiable even if that belief was unreasonable.

"Weird families happen. Weird things happen inside of them," defense attorney Leslie Abramson told jurors in the retrial, urging them to accept a story so detailed and horrifying it could have come from a gothic novel.

The judge, however, disallowed the theory.

Jose Menendez, a Cuban immigrant, was a self-made millionaire, the chief executive of Live Entertainment Inc. The defense portrayed him as a demonic pervert whose drive for success was twisted into torture of his sons, who could never achieve enough to satisfy him.

Both Erik and Lyle testified at the first trial, weeping and grimacing in apparent agony as they opened the door on secrets they had been sworn to protect.

Clinton to provide testimony on video

Chuck Bartels
The Associated Press

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. — President Clinton can testify by videotape at the trial of his former Whitewater partners, but he can't have the questions in advance, a federal judge ruled Wednesday.

U.S. District Judge George Howard Jr. denied a request from James and Susan McDougal to compel Clinton to testify in person at their conspiracy and fraud trial. He said ordering Clinton to travel to Little Rock "would be unduly burdensome to the president in the performance of his official duties."

Rejecting Clinton's request to see the questions in advance, Howard said the only reason a president might deserve such special treatment would be if national security were involved.

"They concern matters from prior to his presidency, so matters of national security will not be concerned," Howard said. Clinton had argued that the process would go more easily if he got the questions in advance.

Howard also rejected Whitewater prosecutor Kenneth Starr's request that the questioning be held in a federal courtroom. Howard said it could be held at the White House, but without the presidential insignia displayed.

The judge will preside over the questioning by video conferencing and will rule on any objections. He will also edit the videotape if lawyers cannot agree on what is pertinent for the jury to hear.

The videotape will be made in private, and the original will not be released. Howard said he will unseal only the portion that is played for the jury.

McDougal, his ex-wife and Gov. Jim Guy Tucker are accused of arranging nearly $3 million in fraudulent loans from McDougal's Madison Guaranty Savings and Loan and David Hale's Capital Management Services Inc.

Hale is the government's chief witness and claims Clinton pressured him to loan Mrs. McDougal $300,000. Clinton has called the accusation "a bunch of bull." The McDougals say only Clinton can set the story straight.

"The important thing is that we're going to be getting the president's testimony," Mrs. McDougal's attorney, Bobby McDaniel, said after Howard's ruling. "We'll do the best we can with it."

The Justice Department had proposed allowing Clinton to testify on video.

The judge gave all sides five days to work out a date for Clinton to give the deposition.

Geologists say blue rock is new mineral

Robert Seely
The Associated Press

LONDON — A brilliant blue rock bought on vacation as a cheap souvenir is a mineral new to science, geologists confirmed this week.

"The mineral has the most intense blue that we have ever seen," Gordon Cressey, deputy head of the mineralogy department at the Natural History Museum in London, said Wednesday.

Cressey said the mineral mimicked a stained glass window, changing color from blue to purple to transparent depending on the direction from which light diffracted through it.

Geologist Anna Grayson bought the rock, which doesn't yet have a name, from a roadside souvenir seller in Morocco 15 years ago.

The seller told her it was lapis lazuli, a blue semi-precious stone. It sat in her house near London until last year, when she took it to the Natural History Museum for identification.

After three months of tests, experts this week confirmed it

"The mineral has the most intense blue that we have ever seen."

Gordon Cressey
deputy head of the mineralogy department was a previously unknown mineral.

Cressey said about 40 minerals are discovered around the world each year, but usually in amounts so small "they can hardly be seen by the naked eye." "This new mineral is so unusual because the specimen is very large and because it is the most strikingly blue mineral ever discovered," he said.

Experts will test it in coming months to identify its atomic structure and what, if any, uses the mineral has.

So far, the team of seven researchers has found iron, oxygen, calcium, aluminum and silicon in the mineral, Cressey said.

China earthquake leaves 24 dead

Women, children, and sick struggle to find shelter from cold

Charlene L. Fu
The Associated Press

BEIJING — Women, children and the sick squeezed into tents to escape the cold, but many of the thousands of homeless from an earthquake that killed 24 in the forbidding deserts of far northwestern China had no shelter Wednesday night.

Tuesday's magnitude-6.9 quake cut a vicious swath through settlements along the centuries-old trade route known as the Silk Road. In one village, residents worked through the night to patch a fractured dike.

The tremor and 68 aftershocks — some reaching magnitude 5.1 — knocked out communication links to almost all the settlements, and the death count is predicted to rise as wreckage reports trickle in.

About 15,000 buildings were toppled in the Xinjiang region quake, government seismologists said Wednesday, and at least 78 people injured, nine seriously. About 10,000 were left homeless.

Jiashi county, the hardest-hit area, is about 43 miles east of Kashgar, an ancient bazaar town. The earthquake was centered close to Artux, 15 miles north of Kashgar.

Many people were at home when the quake struck at 11 p.m. (10 a.m. EST).

Seventeen of those killed were children under the age of eight, said Bake Aji, director of the Kashgar Seismology Bureau.

"They were home watching television and couldn't get out fast enough," Bake said.

Most houses in the region are one-story dwellings made of baked mud bricks and topped by wooden beams and mud that could cause heavy casualties if they collapsed.

A rescue worker in Jiashi told The Associated Press by telephone, "There are no buildings left standing."

"Nobody can stay in their own homes because some have completely collapsed and others are damaged too seriously to be safe," a local reporter said in a phone interview broadcast on national television.

The reporter said simple tents were going up to house women, children and the sick and elderly, but there would be no shelter for others.

Roads in the county had large cracks, but traffic could still get through, the report said. But fissures more than 1 foot wide opened up along a 2,000-foot section of a dike at a small reservoir.

More than 6,300 head of livestock, mostly sheep, were reported killed.

Rodman's mouth fiercer than his tattoos

Jim Little
The Associated Press

CHICAGO — He wanted people talking about him. He got his wish. Only his first name is necessary to start an argument anywhere in town.

Dennis. At any given moment, half of Chicago wants to throttle Dennis Rodman, and half wants to throttle the NBA higher-ups who hit him with a six-game suspension. Sometimes it's the same half.

On Tuesday, the Chicago Bulls issued a statement in which good Dennis apologized for head-butting a referee Saturday night in New Jersey, for getting suspended, and most of all, for letting down his teammates and fans. But at almost exactly the same time, his evil twin went on the radio and announced he was being persecuted.

Maybe Dennis got what he deserved this time. Maybe not. Funny thing: this time, it hardly matters. What really happened, or what Rodman says now or even what he does when he comes back, may not make a difference. He can get every rebound from that moment forward through the end of the season and it may be too late to save his skin. He is in the last year of a contract. He may already have blown his last chance.

When Dennis became a menace and wore out his welcome in San Antonio at the end of last season, he was a pariah. The Bulls were the only people willing to take him in — but not before management went to Michael Jordan and Scottie Pippen for pledges of cooperation. They got them. But should the Bulls lose anywhere along the six-game stretch, they might just take them back.

Especially Jordan. He usually gets what he wants, and right now, he wants the Bulls to win an NBA-record 70 games in the regular season before winning their fourth championship of the 1990s. He also wants Chicago to claim the NBA record for most consecutive wins at home. After Tuesday night's 89-67 win over Sacramento, the Bulls remained tied with Orlando; each team had 40.

That explained, to a degree, Jordan's suddenly more charitable take on Dennis.

"I think he kind of regrets the whole situation. What he has to do now is try to work himself back into our good graces. He's got to realize the purpose and reason for his being here — to fit into a system."

When the suspension first came down, Jordan was much harsher. He is careful not to make too much of the 70-game mark in public, but anyone who's spent time around him knows he can't resist any challenge put in front of him. That's why, at first blush, he came down hard on Rodman. "It's very disappointing," he said at the time, "very dangerous to this team's success."

But then Jordan probably sat down, took a look at the schedule for the next six games — Philadelphia, Sacramento, New York, Toronto, Atlanta and the Los Angeles Clippers — and figured the Bulls could do it without Rodman. And perhaps even without Pippen, who is supposed to be resting a sore back.

So it should have come as no surprise when Jordan had 37 points and 16 rebounds to win at New Jersey the night Rodman lost his head and got tossed. Or that he came back with totals of 38 and 11 Monday night to beat Philadelphia.

Elevating his game in response to a challenge is nothing new. Jordan averaged 31 points and six rebounds in 39 minutes heading into the six games. But the elevated playing time it requires — 43 minutes in New Jersey and 47 in Philadelphia — is already showing in wear and tear.

BG's Patteson to compete at NCAA meet

Blake Parkins
The BG News

The Bowling Green swimming and diving team has concluded its season, but one swimmer has one last opportunity to compete.

Senior Cheryl Patteson will represent Bowling Green this weekend in the NCAA meet at the University of Michigan.

The meet features an exclusive group of athletes chosen from the best collegiate swimmers in the nation, including four other athletes from the Mid-American Conference. The meet starts today and continues through Saturday.

Swimmers must place in the top 16 during the morning qualifying round to advance to the finals in the evening. Athletes that qualify for the finals are then considered All-Americans.

Patteson has been training for a month since her disappointing finish in the MAC meet at Ohio University. Her qualifying status was uncertain until Patteson solidified an NCAA bid by winning two events in an Ohio Senior meet two weekends ago at Miami.

This meet allowed her to select three events from the four that she qualified for in the NCAA field. Patteson will compete in the 200- and 400-yard individual medley, as well as the 200-yard breaststroke.

Head coach Randy Julian is excited about Patteson's invitation to the NCAA meet not only for her, but for Bowling Green.

"As a program we're definitely capable, and facility-wise and sport-wise, we can take athletes to the NCAA," said Julian. "We can be very competitive with the higher financed programs throughout the country."

This is Patteson's second appearance in the NCAA meet. She also was invited to go as a freshman. Patteson commented on the experience.

"I went my freshman year, and I think I was a little overwhelmed my freshman year," Patteson said. "But now I know what it's all about."

The invitation to the NCAA has helped Patteson cope with a damaging loss in the 200-yard butterfly at the MAC meet. She had not lost the event all season, and the defeat prevented her from getting her fourth consecutive "Swimmer of the Year" title.

Patteson commented on how the invitations have helped her rebound from the loss.

"I can say well, maybe I did lose that one race at MACs, but I can say that I went to NCAA's and the person who beat me didn't go," Patteson said. "At the time it felt like my whole career was blown up in one race, but that was only because I was emotional ... I'm better now."

Patteson is thankful for the opportunity to compete at the NCAA level and for the guidance that coach Julian, and assistant coach Kendra Ackers have provided.

"It's so cool to compete with the best swimmers in the nation," Patteson said. "I truly couldn't have done it without them [Julian and Ackers]."

Kentucky presents new challenges to upstart Utes

Owen Canfield
The Associated Press

MINNEAPOLIS — Utah coach Rick Majerus thinks he knows how to combat Kentucky's depth.

"Food poisoning," he said.

The coach who's always quick with a one-liner wasn't joking however when he really assessed the Wildcats, the top seeds in the Midwest Regional and strong favorites to reach the Final Four.

"We have a good team. We've played a good schedule," Majerus said Wednesday. "But we've not played the likes of these guys."

Kentucky (30-2) went through the Southeastern Conference undefeated, something that hadn't been done in 40 years. The Wildcats have good size, great quickness, can shoot the 3-pointer and have more quality depth than anybody around.

"If anyone beats them this year, they will have earned their title," said Louisville coach Denny Crum, whose team could wind up facing Kentucky in the regional finals, "because I still think they are by far the best team."

Utah (27-6) will counter Thursday night with one excellent player in forward Keith Van Horn, plus a solid group of supporting players. Van Horn is a second-team All-American and two-time Western Athletic Conference player of the year who is healthy this week — last weekend, he missed the first-round game due to the flu.

In Brandon Jessie and Michael Doleac, the Utes have enough size and strength to present problems for Kentucky's front-line. The unknown — as it is with just about everyone who plays Kentucky — is whether Utah will be able to handle the Wildcats' pressure and then get good

Women's tennis faces top teams in New Orleans

Paul Markoff
The BG News

The Bowling Green women's tennis team heads south to the sunny skies of New Orleans for spring break as they compete in the New Orleans Invitational.

The team will face tough competition from host New Orleans, Southwestern Louisiana, Southeastern Louisiana and Southern Mississippi. New Orleans boasts the 14th ranked team in the Southwest region. Also with regionally ranked players is Southeastern Louisiana with sophomores Julia Merdins and Simona Nedorostoba, ranked 13th and 14th respectively.

The stiffest competition will come from Southern Mississippi's twins. The twins, Kati and Susie Kocsis are both ranked in the top 100 nationally. Kati is ranked eighth and Susie is ranked 86th. Falcon coach Penny Dean knows the team faces some tough challenges, but that is just what the doctor ordered.

"We are going to run into some tough competition down south," Dean stated. "That's exactly what we need."

The Falcons are also heading south to gain some practice and game experience on the outdoor courts. The nice weather last week enabled the team a few workouts outdoors, but the frigid temperatures and snow have returned. Dean feels the practice outdoors will help the Falcons game progress. "We played a few times outdoors thanks to the weather," Dean said. "We'll be playing on hardcourts in New Orleans, and the experience outdoors should help us for the spring."

Some changes will be made in the Falcons line-up, including the addition of freshman Jenny Cheung in the singles line-up. Cheung will debut at sixth singles, while freshman Aranzta Gomez will play fourth singles and junior Julie Weisblatt will fill in at the fifth singles slot. Dean feels Cheung has the talent and diversity to compete in singles.

"She (Cheung) has a great variety to her game," Dean stated. "She can volley or come to the net. Jenny is a very intelligent player."

Softball has trouble in paradise

Jeremy Yohe
The BG News

Maybe it was that the bats were a little rusty from the winter layoff? Or maybe the pitching was a tad off? Then again the competition could have been that good.

For the Falcon softball team it was probably a little of all three as BG found wins hard to come by in their first action of the year dropping all six games (one game was an exhibition and does not count as a loss) in Hawaii.

In the Bank of Hawaii Invitational softball tournament, BG was pitted against teams that have already been involved in plenty of action on the season. Among the five teams BG faced was 19th ranked Hawaii. The Falcons fell to the team from Honolulu twice, losing by a score of 9-0 both times.

"We knew when we went out there, we were going to be a little tight," said BG head coach Rachel Miller-Reif.

Outfielder Jenny Ranz and second baseman Melissa Cricks provided most of the offensive attack for BG with half of the Falcons 26 hits.

Ranz was named to the All-

Tournament team behind her performance at the plate. She went 9-of-18 and scored three runs, while Cricks had four hits and a double.

Miller-Reif felt it was BG's lack of offense that hampered them the most and not the opposition's pitching.

"Pitching didn't dominate as much as the hitting did because they have had more hitting," she said. "They are averaging about 20 games under their belt so that explains that a little bit."

Two pitchers had two firsts for the Falcons. Jennifer Wolf made her first appearance since injuring her shoulder at the beginning of the 1995 season, and Garrett Gholston saw her first collegiate action, giving up three earned runs over four innings.

Wolf pitched in five of the games and suffered three losses. "[Jen] is trying to get her timing back," Reif said. "She has been off for a while year."

Over spring break, the Falcons will play a slew of games including tournaments at California and Fresno State. From there BG will swing back to the midwest to open up conference play at Central Michigan.

Keeping a positive attitude over the course of the weekend will be one of the keys if the Falcons hope to break into the win column.

"This is a solid and premier tournament nationally," Miller-Reif said. "I think we will play well. We just have to stick together as a team. If we start playing as individuals and letting things get to us then we are going to get beat up a little bit."

As for Central Michigan, Miller-Reif expects another competitive game.

"Central is solid," Miller-Reif

Brian Gibson
special to The BG News

If it was asked once last weekend, it was asked a hundred times — where and who is Bowling Green? Thirty-six hours later that question was resoundingly answered as the Falcon rugby team crushed five east coast opponents to win the Washington, D.C. St. Patrick's Day Tournament.

Bowling Green beat Mount St. Mary's 54-0, Kutztown University 15-0, Loyola 10-7, Princeton 41-7, Albany State 9-0 and Princeton again in the final 16-5. Leading the charge was winger Paul Tod who scored 79 points for the Falcons over the weekend including all of the points in two of the matches.

"Rugby has been around the Eastern seaboard a hundred years longer than it's been played in the Midwest, and a lot of people out there think that they invented the game," said BG coach Roger Mazzarella. "We very definitely upset the balance of the collegiate rugby universe last weekend."

"A lot of people have heard that BG is good, but this is the first time that most of them got to see how good," said Falcon captain Dan Kelley.

"One of the highlights of my coaching career came after we beat Princeton and several USA Rugby officials came over to our sideline and introduced me to the New Zealand ambassador. He shook my hand and said that we had played the best rugby he had seen in the three years he had been here," Mazzarella said.

The Falcons achievement is even more remarkable in light of the fact that they had only been able to practice outside just three days before leaving for Washington.

In the first match against Mount St. Mary's the Falcons came out with the after burners roaring. It only took flanker Vince Ketterer thirty seconds to pounce on a loose ball for his first career try and gave BG a quick 5-0 lead. From then on a steady procession of Brown and Orange jerseys punched over the goal line with the regularity of a metronome. Eight man Jeff McVey scored twice and fullback Tony Mazzarella and wing Kevin Kline added solo efforts. Tod did the most damage with three tries and six conversion kicks.

In the first Princeton match and with the USA Rugby officials looking on, the Falcons could seemingly do no wrong as they meticulously dissected a team that had already qualified for the sweet 16 by a 41-5 score. Once again the Falcons struck within seconds of the opening whistle. This time it was Mazzarella beating a Tiger defense that would have had trouble catching a cold let alone the hard running fullback.

Forwards Matt Koon and Chris

Haid also added tries but once again Tod did the major damage with a pair of tries, five conversions and a penalty field goal.

"We could do no wrong against Princeton, and we couldn't have picked a better audience to do it in front of," Mazzarella said. "Paul Tod had a career weekend. Fifteen years ago, 79 points was the most anyone on this team had scored in an entire season."

Against Kutztown Tod was the entire show as he booted five penalty field goals. The tiring Falcons won their third match of the day by a 15-0 score.

Sunday the Falcons opened with a lackluster 9-0 win over Albany State. Fly half Corey Ward booted two penalty field goals and fullback Brian Self added another in the semifinal round victory.

With fatigue now a major factor, the Falcons once again turned to Tod who again did all of BG's scoring as they faced Princeton for the second time in the championship match.

DALLAS — Prosecutors say Dallas Cowboys wide receiver Michael Irvin will be subpoenaed to testify Thursday before a grand jury about why he was in a motel room where a woman was arrested on drug charges.

While investigating a motel manager's complaint early March 4 about possible prostitution and drug use, police in suburban Irving said they discovered marijuana, cocaine and drug paraphernalia in a room occupied by four people.

A woman identified as Angela Renee Beck, 22, of Cedar Hill, a south Dallas suburb, was the only person arrested.

"The narcotics were found in her property or immediately around her" and she claimed all the drugs belonged to her, Lt. Jimmy Perdue of the Irving Police Department said Tuesday night.

Now, Dallas County prosecutors say they want statements from Irvin, former Cowboys' tight end Alfredo Roberts and another woman.

"Somebody possessed those drugs. There were four people in that room, and I don't know if it was one of them or all of them. We're just trying to find out," first assistant district attorney Norm Kinne said Tuesday night.

"We're not satisfied at this time as to who all is responsible."

shots.

Virginia Tech did a good job against the press in a second-round game last week, but got worn out by Kentucky's parade of players and wound up losing by 24.

"It'll be something we haven't faced much this year," said guard Mark Rydych. "We can't run up and down the floor and exchange baskets with them."

Maybe not, but Van Horn said the Utes will have to attack the press and then try to do what has worked so well all year — get to the foul line. The Utes led the nation this year, hitting 78 percent from the line.

They are going to be asked to give their statements so that we can see who is criminally responsible for the narcotics," Kinne said.

Irvin could not be reached for comment Tuesday. At their home in suburban Carrollton, a woman identifying herself only as his wife said that she was unaware of the incident and that her husband was out of town. The Dallas Morning News reported.

According to a 911 transcript obtained Tuesday, the motel manager complained:

"We have two individuals who keep checking into our hotel. ... They've been renting the rooms and when we have to clean up after them, we've been finding cocaine and crack and marijuana. Well, they're back on our property tonight and their room is getting noisy."

Irving police chief Lowell Cannaday said the circumstances appear suspicious, but that the police department doesn't have enough evidence to arrest or charge the witnesses involved. "It's not a crime to be in a room at the Residence Inn," Cannaday said.

Irvin recently completed the most successful of his eight seasons with the Cowboys. He was named to the Pro Bowl for the fifth time and holds Cowboys records for most receptions and receiving yardage.

That, and Utah's size advantage up front, are what most concern Kentucky coach Rick Pitino, who noted that the Utes ranked No. 3 nationally in rebounding.

"I think they have strengths over us, and I think we have strengths over them," he said. "Which strengths win out?"

Crum might argue that strength of character is what has carried his Louisville team to the regional semifinals against No. 2 seed Wake Forest. The Cardinals (22-11) have had to contend with injuries, academic disqualifications and an NCAA investigation during a season that almost ended in the first round of the tournament.

Instead, the 11th-seeded Cardinals rallied from a late 12-point deficit to beat Tulsa, then knocked out third-seeded Villanova in the second round. This from a team that entered the tournament having lost four out of five.

"I've never had a team I think that is as short-handed as this team play as well as this team has played," said Crum, who is in his 25th year at Louisville. "I think most of it has to do with their effort and their attitude."

The Cardinals have some pretty good players, too, most notably DeJuan Wheat and Samaki Walker. Wheat leads the team with 18 points per game and has led the Cardinals in scoring and assists the past two years. Walker, who missed 10 games while the NCAA looked into his dad's purchase of a car, gives Louisville size and scoring inside.

Thompson chooses job over gambling

Tim Dahlberg
The Associated Press

LAS VEGAS -- Georgetown basketball coach John Thompson, bowing to the wishes of his university president, today said he will drop his application for a Nevada gaming license.

Thompson had planned to operate slot machines at the Las Vegas airport but was told by the Rev. Leo O'Donovan, the university president, that he couldn't do that and remain Hoyas coach.

"Our position is that it is inappropriate for an active Georgetown University coach to have investments in the gaming industry," said the Rev. Leo O'Donovan, Georgetown's president.

Thompson, in Atlanta to coach Georgetown in the NCAA East regional, said he had reconsidered after speaking with O'Donovan.

"He is a person who has been extremely supportive and a person who I love very dearly because he's permitted me to be me," Thompson said. "I have decided to drop it."

Thompson, an avid Las Vegas slot machine player, applied for the license months ago to join a Las Vegas casino owner in the company that operates a lucrative string of 1,000 slot machines at McCarran International Airport.

News of his planned entry into the gaming industry was greeted icily by both the university and the NCAA.

NCAA executive director Cedric Dempsey said it would be "ill-advised for anyone connected to college sports to be involved, even peripherally, with gambling interests."

Dempsey also said he had "strong concerns about the image statement that this makes about the sport and about him as a coach."

Thompson wants to own 10 percent of a company controlled by Michael Gaughan that runs the slot machine concession at the Las Vegas airport. Gaughan is the principle stockholder in a company that owns two casinos, but the slot machine concession is separate from the casinos.

Gaughan's son, Brendan, is a senior walk-on guard on the Georgetown team, which Dempsey said could be a further invitation to controversy if the team doesn't play well in a big game.

"If your team competes and doesn't play to the caliber that it's capable of playing, there's going to be the question of whether or not the game had been fixed," Dempsey said. "It just opens up a tremendous suspicion, I think, that is not necessary."

said. "They have been for the entire time I have been in the conference and they will look to take two from us because it is at their house."

Thursday
Hawaii 9, BG 0

Hawaii hurlers silenced Falcon batters in the first game of the invitational holding BG to one hit. The Rainbow Wahine slammed BG starter Jennifer Wolf from the get go scoring four in the first and added another run in the second to open up an early lead. Sophomore Melissa Cricks had the lone hit for the Falcons.

Friday
Tennessee-Chattanooga 5, BG 4

Freshman Garrett Gholston made her college debut on the mound for BG and pitched four innings allowing 3 earned runs on four hits. The Falcons used some timely hitting and some fielding errors by the Lady Mocs to snatch a 4-0 lead heading into the fifth inning.

BG brought in freshman Amy Hamilton to relieve Gholston in the fifth, but promptly gave up the go-ahead run to suffer the loss.

TENNIS

Along with the changes in the singles line-up, the doubles line-up will be changed as well. Dean plans on changing each of the doubles teams during the trip, and hopes to find a doubles duo that gels. "We still need a lot of work, and one way to do that is through competition," Dean stated. "I'll be looking at the doubles teams carefully. We need to find some chemistry."

Dean feels the trip will be a good measuring stick.

PLACEMENT SCHEDULE

Bowling Green State University
Career Services
Campus Recruitment Calendar
For the weeks of:
April 15, 1996 through May 3, 1996

Scheduling On-Campus Interviews:
Interview sign-ups for the recruiting period April 15, 1996 through May 3, 1996 will begin with Advanced Job Hunters Sign-up on Monday, April 1, 1996 at 5pm and continue through Wednesday at 4pm. Beginning at 5 p.m. on Wednesday, April 3, 1996, any registered student and alumnus may access the sign-up system for General Signups. It is recommended that students who have received letters of invitation for Pre-Selection Interviews wait until Wednesday, at 5 p.m. to select your reserved interview time. Refer to the instructions for pre-selection sign-up on pages 12-13 of the Career Search Manual. All interview schedules remain on-line until two days prior to the organization's visit. A message not available for sign-ups indicates that a schedule is off-line. In this instance, please call the office directly at 372-2356 to schedule an interview appointment.

Accessing the Placement System:
1. Dial 372-9899. (You must be registered with Resume Expert Plus)

(You will hear:) If you wish to schedule an appointment with a visiting employer, press the 1 key. If you would like to hear Placement News, press the 2 key. Press the 3 key if you have been pre-selected by an employer. Press the 4 key to access the Alumni VP Service. Press the 5 key to hear your confirmed appointments. Press the star (*) key to quit.

2. Press 1 to schedule an interview or Press 3 when you have been pre-selected by an employer.

3. Enter your Identification Number. (The number you used on your Resume Expert Plus disk).

4. Enter the seven-digit schedule number for the employer with whom you would like to schedule an interview (this number is located on the Campus Recruiting Calendar, to the left of the position title.)

If you have entered a valid number the system will play the message:

You have selected (name of organization), if this is correct press the pound (#) key to continue or the star (*) key to choose another organization.

The system will now verify that you meet the requirements, as specified by the employer. If you meet the requirements, you can proceed.

Otherwise, the system will play a message which explains why you are unable to sign-up with the employer. Should you wish to be considered by this employer, add you name to the Waiting List and submit a copy of your Placement Data Sheet.

5. Press the 1 key for a morning interview, press the 2 key for an afternoon interview, or press the 3 key for the next available time. (Press either 1, 2 or 3).

Once you have selected a time, then you may press the pound (#) key to accept the time, or press the star () key to reject the time. When you press the pound (#) key, the system will play the message: An interview has been reserved for you at (time). Press the star () key to schedule an interview with another organization or the pound key to return to start.

6. Repeat steps 4 and 5 to schedule additional interviews.

7. Bring a copy of your Placement Data Sheet on high quality resume paper within 48 hours to the Sign-up Room adjacent to the Career Services' reception area, 360 Saddlehorn Student Services Building. Place your data sheet on the top shelf of the employer's mailbox. Please take any available recruiting literature which was forwarded by the organization and review the employer's file in the Center for Career Resources prior to your interview. Failure to submit your Placement Data Sheet within 48 hours may result in your removal from the interview schedule without notification.

Please remember: if you are unable for any reason to sign-up for an interview, you will be asked whether you wish to add your name to the Waiting List. Students are encouraged to get on Waiting Lists. Should the employer send another recruiter or modify the position requirements (i.e. lower GPA requirements), you will be notified directly for an interview. You must also submit a Placement Data Sheet for every Waiting List.

Consult the Career Services' homepage (<http://www.bgsu.edu/offices/careers/index.htm>) or listen to Placement News (press 2) to keep informed of changes or additions to interview schedules, or other Career Services programs.

Cancellation of Interview Appointments:
Cancellation of an interview must be reported in person to the Career Services no later than 5pm one week (7 full days) before the interview day. Complete a cancellation card in the Sign-up Room of Career Services. You can not cross your name off an interview schedule. Late cancellations will result in forfeiture of sign-up privileges for the next recruiting period. No Show Policy: No-shows are missed interview appointments. Employers become very upset when students miss their scheduled appointments which harms BGSU's reputation in the market place. The penalty for a no-show is immediate suspension of your sign-up privileges for the next recruiting period. To reinstate your sign-up privileges, you are required to write a letter of apology to the employer for missing the interview, bring this letter along with an addressed, stamped envelope, and meet with a staff member to explain your behavior. Any student who "no-shows" twice will be denied interviewing privileges for the remainder of the academic year.

Notice of Citizenship Requirements: If an employer is willing to interview international students, this will be noted in the position requirements.

Spotlight Presentations: Spotlight presentations offer valuable information about career paths, detailed position responsibilities and organizational philosophy. All students scheduling interviews are strongly encouraged to attend appropriate Spotlights. Please carefully note dates, times and locations of Spotlight presentations, as they may vary. Consult the Campus Recruitment Calendar for dates, times and locations.

Additional Placement Services: There are important services available to you at the Career Services. Please note that not all organizations and companies regularly recruit on college campuses. The list below generally reflects the high demand areas in the world of work. Please do not become discouraged if your career field is not requested. Each day, the staff of Career Services refers registered students directly to employers who have positions in a wide variety of career fields. We also assist you in conducting a job search through the following services: career and placement counseling, VIP professional vacancy hotline, job search workshops, professional development seminars, career fairs and the Falcon Career Connection. The Center for Career Resources contains a wealth of information about careers, employers and current job vacancies in ALL fields.
